VILLA WOUNDED BY CAVALRYMEN

Americans Under Col. Dodd Scatter
Villa's Band and Almost Capture Bandit—Villa's Career Ended

El Paso, Texas, April 1.—Four hundred American cavalrymen, under the command of Colonel George A. Dodd, galloping down from the granite slopes of the great continental divide, have fallen in with the main body of Francisco Villa's band at the San Geronimo ranch, scattering them in many directions and driving the bandit chief wounded and crippled to seek a hiding place in the mountains. Villa was hurried from danger in a carriage. The fight opened at 6 o'clock in the morning of March 29,
and continued for several hours.

The news of the exploit was flashed into Juarez yesterday and sent a thrill along the border. For seventeen hours the veteran colonel with his picked troopers of the Seventh and Tenth Cavalry, drove down the valley of the Santa Maria river. At the end of a fifty-five mile ride they fell upon the unsuspecting Villa camp, where 500 bandits were celebrating the massacre of 172 Carranza soldiers two days previous at Guerrero.

Villa shot through the hip and with one limb shattered, was hurried from the scene, barely in time to escape the onslaught of the Americans. The bandit made a brief but hopeless stand before a charge of Colonel Dodd and his troopers. Then they broke and after leaving thirty-three dead on the field, including their commander, Gen.
Eliseo Hernandez. Three machine guns, a number of horses, rifles, ammunition and equipment fell into the hands of the Americans.

Among the known wounded is Pablo Lopez, Villa's lieutenant in the Columbus raid. The American casualties were four privates wounded.

The American soldiers did not linger on the field of victory. For five hours they drove the enemy before them into the wilderness of mountain peak, desert and canyon, where roads or even trails are unknown and where a misstep means death to horse and rider. They halted only after the chase had led them ten miles and the fugitives were scattered into little bands of half a dozen men each.

Villa's career has ended; his power has been broken. His death or capture is only a question of days, perhaps only hours. Such is the inevitable conclusion reached here as little by little the details of "Dodd's ride" reach the border. It seems impossible that the crippled bandit can remain hidden, even in the mountainous wastes in which he has sought refuge.

at the Council Chamber. It was ex-of Commerce will undertake to raise the canvass of the city to begin Tues-

A MAYSVILLE ARTIST.

The concert by the orchestra of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music
Thursday night at the Hughes High School, drew a capacity audience.
Several Maysvillians went down to hear Miss Elizabeth Graham. Barbour play the E-flat concerto of Liszt with the orchestra. The music critic of the Enquirer writes thus of the performance: "Miss Barbour's is a pianistic talent of decided ability. She has a technique which is thoroughly capable and secure, and a musical understanding which quickens the performance. She played the Liszt concerto with fine pianistic virtuosity and technical brilliancy, displaying her gifts in a decidedly favorable manner."

THE MORGAN TRIAL.

In the Mason Circuit Court Friday afternoon the jury in the trial of W.
O. Morgan, indicted on the charge of incest, returned a verdict of not guilty. The case consumed the entire day but it took the jury less than five minutes in which to render its verdict. The defendant was represented by Attorney Frank P. O'Donnell, while Attorney Grannis was prosecutor.

DESERTION OF FAMILIES.

Charitable societies are reporting a large number of cases of abandonment of families the last winter. In some cases women are left destitute by reservists who went back to Europe to fight. But it has been noted for some time that desertions are getting more common.

The societies make the curious statement that these cases are most frequent either in very hard or very good times. In the former the husbands become disheartened and simply lie down under the load. It's cowardly, but some men are built that way. In good times men get distant jobs unknown to their families. They may long have wanted to duck the yoke for a fresh start.

The poor man who breaks a marriage vow is perhaps influenced by the loose family relations of the present time. He reads about the socially elect in the divorce colonies, and thinks he has even better justification. That is of course, no excuse. The divorcee at least gets her alimony, supposed to heal all wounds, though often it doesn't. But if marriage were more thoroughly respected in high life, the influence would be felt in all social strata.

Family abandonment nowadays is a prominent cause of poverty. Many poor women will go hungry rather than admit that they were fools enough to marry a sneak. Charitable societies have to be discriminating, though. The deserter may be merely over in some other town, faithfully and industriously sending home his pay envelope regularly. Meanwhile his thrifty wife may be drawing supplies regularly from the municipality and the societies as a pathetic grass widow.

The lot of the genuine abandoned wife grows more and more pitiful. The costs of supporting herself and little ones multiply. But the pay of washwomen keeps about stationary. Police authorities should reach out the long arm unrelentingly for these sneaks and shirks, and make them realize that there is a God in Israel.

BOND ISSUE SOON.

That the administration will be compelled to issue bonds in the immediate future is the conviction of those who are keeping track of the treasury situation. As a revenue producer the Underwood tariff bill is a flat failure. Instead of economy the Democrats have practiced the utmost extravagance in appropriations. The President's eleventh hour conversion to military preparedness was to have been made the excuse for a bond issue, but at the rate Congress is proceeding it may be impossible to await the passage of the army and navy bills, so it now seems probable that the Mexican invasion will be made the excuse. The Underwood bill is so nearly a free trade measure that 74 per cent of the present importations come in duty free. During the entire history of the Dingley bill the customs receipts averaged $23,000,000 a month. The average receipts under the Underwood bill have been $19,000,000 a month, but the expenses of the government have greatly increased, so that with greatly augmented internal revenue the deficit amounts to over $2,000,000 a month. And yet, as has been shown in this column, there has been no diminution of imports. The imports in January of this year reached the unprecedented figure of $184,362,000. While it is true that the war has cut off the trade of the United States with the Central powers, it has resulted in a tremendous increase of trade with the other allies. England doubled her exports to the United States in January as compared with January a year ago. France increased her exports 60 per cent, Italy 40 per cent and Russia, which in January, 1915, sold us less than $15,000 worth of goods, sent us in January of this year $376,753 worth. Thoughtful statesmen are naturally asking "If these nations can send us such quantities of goods while they are engaged in war, what will happen to American industries when those countries quit fighting and turn their entire attention to industry?"

Time works wonders. It may even yet unearth a candidate or two for the vice presidency.

In time, of course, we will read of the high cost of breathing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR APRIL 2.
"CONVERSION OF SAUL"
Acts 9th Chapter.
(By Rev. A. F. Stahl.)

The Story.

Saul of Tarsus, a prominent young Jew in Jerusalem, was on his way to Damascus with authority from the high priest to bring from that city the disciples he found there, that they might be imprisoned in the Holy City. But on the way Jesus appeared to him and so the whole course of his life was changed. The bright light which shined from heaven when Jesus spoke blinded him, so that he was led into the city where for three days he sat in blindness, refusing to eat or drink. A disciple named Ananias, being sent by God, visited him and having miraculously restored his sight, commanded him to be baptized. Saul is the Hebrew name and Paul the Latin name.

Being the son of devout Jewish parents, he was sent to Jerusalem to be taught by the learned Jewish religious teacher Gamaliel. He thus became a zealous defender of the Jewish religion and naturally came to be a leader in the persecution of the followers of Jesus who were supplanting the Jewish religion with the religion of Christ. He is first mentioned in the account of the martyrdom of Stephen, to whose death he gave his influence. Having driven most of the Christians from Jerusalem, he received permission to go to other cities to continue the persecution. "No journey was ever taken on which so much interest is concentrated, as this of St. Paul from Jerusalem to Damascus. It is so critical a passage in the history of God's dealings with man, and we feel it to be so closely bound up with all our best knowledge and best happiness in this life, and with all our hopes for the world to come, that the mind is delighted to dwell upon it, and we are eager to learn or imagine all its details. The conversion of Saul was like the call of a second Abraham. . . . It is difficult to guess what was the appearance of Saul's company on that memorable occasion. We neither know how he traveled nor who his associates were, nor where he rested on the way, nor what road he followed from the Judean to the Syrian capital." Thus write Conybeare & Howson in their life of St. Paul.

Saul's Conversion.
The account of Saul's conversion is given by himself in the twenty-second and twenty-sixth chapters of Acts, as well as here in the ninth chapter by Luke. All three chapters should be studied together. It was at the noon hour when a bright light shined upon him. It was above the brightness of the noon-day sun. Those present saw the light but did not see any one, nor did they seem to understand what was said. Paul heard and saw Jesus. The very one in whom he had no faith now speaks to him. The conversation is as follows: Jesus asks, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" Paul asks, "Who art Thou, Lord?" Jesus replies, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest; but rise and enter the city and it shall be told thee what thou must do."

It seems from this conversation as Luke records it that the purpose of Jesus' appearance to St. Paul was to convince him of the truthfulness of the disciples' claim that Jesus was the Christ, and thus check his opposition to the church. But Paul tells us that Jesus appeared unto him to make him an apostle. Whatever was necessary for this persecutor to do to be recognized as a Christian and to be freed from his sins, Jesus did not deem it necessary personally to tell him. It was left for a human voice to declare that. The commission had been left with man. It is interesting to note here again that according to conversions in acts human agencies as well as the Divine is necessary. God has committed to man the task of bringing Him to bring other men into the realm of the saved.

Thus Paul is brought to believe in the divinity of Jesus. He tells us that he asked "Lord what wilt Thou have me to do?" And being told to go into the city, he is led to the home of one Judas, who lived on the street called Straight. Here for three days did he meditate. The awfulness of his actions upon upon his mind. The guilt of his conduct was evident. While in this disturbed state of mind, God permitted him to see in a vision the coming of a disciple to him whose name was Ananias who would restore his sight and reveal to him the will of Jesus as given in the Gospel.

Up to this time Paul's conversion was not complete. He did believe and during these three days of fasting he certainly did repent, and he had also confessed to Jesus, but, as yet, he seemed not to be free from his sins. His conversion was not complete then until he had obeyed the Lord in baptism. This is made clear by the statement: "And now why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (22:16). "And he arose and was baptized, and the river of Damascus became more to him," says Conybeare & Howson "than all the water of Judah had been."

Ananias.
Ananias was a great disciple. He was not an apostle. He is not afterward mentioned except in this connection. But he was a true and faithful follower of our Lord. He may have thought that Paul was a dangerous man and needed to be assured by God that Paul was now a believer before he would go to him as a minister of the Gospel. But the fact that he was asked to go is honor enough. Little did he know the effect of Paul's conversion upon the world. It may so happen that any believer in the Lord here in Maysville will be used of God to turn forces now opposing the cause into channels that will be of mighty help to our Lord the Christ. Will be willing to use the opportunity when it comes?

Persecuting Jesus.
According to Jesus' words, any good act or kindness shown to any disciple is likewise shown to Christ. So here again He reveals His close relation to the church, by saying that in persecuting the disciples it is as if Jesus were being personally persecuted. Let those both in and without the church keep this in mind whenever they plan to do anything which would hinder the progress of the church of Christ.

BIG HEMP CROP

Clark County Will Produce Half of Kentucky Crop This Year.

The latest estimates verify the fact that Clark county will this year produce about one-half the entire hemp crop grown in Kentucky, thus continuing Winchester as the largest domestic hemp market in the United States, as Winchester dealers have already engaged many of the largest crops in other counties, besides the home output. This will give the Winchester hemp dealers control of practically 75 to 80 per cent of the entire crop in Kentucky. It is a fact not generally known that American hemp is raised only in a limited number of counties in Kentucky and a small quantity in two or three counties each of Missouri and Illinois. It is estimated that the crop of hemp and hemp seed in Clark county will bring to the farmers this year, if the season is favorable, nearly half a million dollars.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

WHY APRIL 1 IS ALL FOOLS' DAY.

For at least three centuries the first day of April has been set apart for the particular kind of tomfoolery with which every boy and girl is familiar. Yet, old as the day is, just why we have it or why we celebrate it on April 1 instead of some other day is quite a good deal of a mystery.

As with most of the folk festivals of our European ancestors, All Fools' Day appears to have been a pagan feast which was retained after the coming of Christianity on account of its great popularity.

Some students believe that the selection of April 1 as All Fools' Day was only a matter of chance. Others think that it was due to New Year's Day having formerly been March 25.

After the year had been officially dated from January 1 the old New Year's remained for a long time in use. This accounts for the frequent employment of a double dated year in January and most of March, which so frequently occurs in the form of February 27, 1722-23. April 1 is the octave of the New Year's of March 25, therefore it was celebrated as the wind-up of the holiday festivity.

Some French authorities assign the introduction of April Fool, their poison d'Avril, to 1564, when Charles IX made the change of the year's beginning to January 1. Another French opinion refers it to the reign of Louis XIII, when a Prince of Lorraine escaped from his imprisonment in the Castle of Nancy by swimming the Meurthe.

Larousse, by no means predisposed to Christian mythology, finds in Poison d'Avril a corruption of passion. According to his view the solemn dignity of the passion was vulgarized into a peasant show of the hobbledoy type. Quittard, holding this opinion of the source of the word, declines to accept the corruption of the word passion and labors to prove that poison was adopted as the translation of Ichthy's, the Greek rebus of the early Christians, adopted as a prudent and pious formula in the days of persecution.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

JUMPED INTO RIVER

From the Hurricane Roof of the Steamer Greendale and Strange Man Was Drowned.

(Times-Star.)

Efforts were begun Friday in Cincinnati to identify a man giving the name of Francis Conner, who leaped from the steamer Greendale and was drowned Thursday night. The man, who was well dressed and appeared to be about 35 years old, told members of the crew that he was in serious trouble in Cincinnati and was anxious to get away. Shortly before the boat reached New Richmond, O., he went to the upper deck. Passengers saw him climb to the top rail and leap overboard. The captain was notified immediately.

The searchlight swept the river and the small boats were put out in several directions, but no trace of the man was found.

The man boarded the boat at Cincinnati but did not register, as he said that he was going only to New Richmond, which is reached in a few hours. He gave the name of Francis Conner to several men who questioned him during the trip up the river. It is believed that this was a fictitious name as he told about being in serious trouble at the same time.

Eight saloons less in Owensboro after May 1 will be the conditions after the regulations to be embodied in an ordinance to be passed by the council at its next meeting, are put into effect. After discussion of the matter for some time, the members of the council reached the conclusion Wednesday morning to limit the saloons of the city to one for each 650 inhabitants of the city. This apportionment will allow twenty-two or twenty-three saloons.

Little Miss Nancy Lovel, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lovel of East Third street, was awarded a gold star with her name engraved on it for her splendid attendance at kindergarten school, and Miss Nancy is proud of her star.

RIVER NEWS

The Greenwood will be the Cincinnati packet Sunday.

The Courier passed up for Charleston Saturday morning with a good trip of freight.

The government steamer Crozet, commanded by Captain Frank Wright, and used at Dam No. 21, under construction near Portland, O., has just come off the Kanawha docks, where the boat's hull was repaired. Crozet is a French name.

The captain and engineer of the Steel City were called before the federal inspectors at Cairo for not reporting the explosion of a steam radiator on that packet which burst, scalding several of the passengers on the Mardi Gras trip. The Steel, formerly the Virginia, will soon enter the LaSalle, St. Louis and New Orleans trade, it is said.

The residents of Aberdeen would have been up against an ugly proposition had it not been for Captain Phister and his splendid ferryboat Laurence. The packets could not land there during the high stage of the river, and the freight for that point was put off here and transferred by the ferryboat, thus relieving them of the necessity of having it hauled from Georgetown by pike.

The death of Captain Dan W. Thomas, a Welshman, recalls a mighty clever and big hearted man who began at the bottom as a coal miner and rose to that of an owner of a coal mine and a towing line of boats and barges. Captain Thomas for many years owned and operated the reliable towboat Jessie, one of the oldest and most famous of the smaller towboats on the Ohio and Great Kanawha rivers.

After reaching a stage of 51.4 feet and standing there for several hours, the Ohio at this point began falling Friday at midnight, and Saturday morning at 6 o'clock the gauge registered 51.2 feet, the waters having receded two-tenths since midnight. By Sunday the water will be off the walk on the south approach of Lime-stone bridge and it is hoped the waters will fall and stay "falled" the balance of the season.

Nelson Bowman of Gallipolis, O., is engineer on the towboat Enterprise. He is considered one of the best engineers on the Ohio river. Engineer Charlie Cox of Cincinnati, late of the Enterprise, was recently caught by the inspectors with more steam on the boat than is allowed by law. His trial came up before Federal Inspectors Clark and Thomas at Point Pleasant late Tuesday, but what the result was it is not learned.

NEW GAME LAWS

Will Keep Hunters and Fishers Busy Finding a Way to Stay Out of Jail.

The three game laws form a comprehensive code on the subject. Under them a closed season is declared on deer and elk until 1921 and on wild turkey, pheasants and partridges until 1920; quail may be hunted between November 14 and January 2 with a bag limit of twelve a day; doves may be hunted between August 31 and October 16 with a bag limit of fifteen; hunting woodcock is prohibited; squirrels may be hunted between June 30 and December 16; rabbits between November 14 and January 1. Possession, sale and transportation of game in a closed season, whether killed in this state or elsewhere, are prohibited, and transportation at all times except in the personal possession of sportsmen unless with permit from the Game and Fish Commission. Game birds properly secured and reared in captivity are declared private property under conditions prescribed in the law. Song and insectivorous birds are protected.

Fishing, excepting with hook and line, is prohibited; and non-resident hunting licenses are reduced to $5.00. Five dollars is allowed the person who causes the apprehension of a person convicted of violating the game laws.

SHAKERTOWN OWNS HISTORIC OLD RELIC.

At Shakertown, near High Bridge, the furnishings of the houses are famous for substantiality as well as elegance, and some of the articles of furniture owned by the Shakers are quite interesting. As an example there stands in the worship room on the first floor of the center house a grandfather's clock that was stationed there in 1828, close to a century ago. The cabinet is of black walnut and of fine workmanship. It is about eight feet high, and has a dial plate that not only indicates the hours, minutes and seconds, but also shows the day of the month and the changes of the moon. The timepiece is in excellent condition and does as accurate work as it did the day it was installed.

Boston folk are advocating the shortening of the Ten Commandments, while down here in Kentucky we are busy with the interesting problem of how to keep the boys from doing away with the whole list.

R. LaRue Case has resigned his position as assistant cashier of the Robertson State Bank, and C. H. Throckmorton has been elected to fill the place vacated by Mr. Case.

Mrs. J. H. Helmer was taken to Hayswood Hospital Friday afternoon at 9 o'clock Saturday morning was operated on for appendicitis.
